The Masters Series 2022 :: Final Round

Played Sunday, 15th January, 2023, at Glenmore

Our first ever visit to Glenmore proved to be a tough initiation when just 7 of us managed to get to 30 points and we saw our first ever 4 way tie for the single Stableford event which Malee Vanderwiel won on a count-back. Superb, quite warm weather and blue skies greeted us at 10am but the Slope rating of 139 proved to be a hurdle too far for most of us. The day's average was 27.3 and 3 of the bottom scores battling for the NAGA played in the same group.

The teams event wasn't quite so close with the Reds running out winners by 5 points from the Green Team with the Blue and Gold bringing up the rear.

The course is penal and local knowledge a distinct advantage on the many blind dog-legs, hidden hazards and trees sometimes in the middle of fairways. The greens were, I thought, quite slow and did not 'run out' – the ball tended to just stop and some subtle rolls made putting difficult. However, the course is in good condition, the fairways excellent although some of the tees need some TLC. All in all another great day out for the Hackers.

Keith McLaren collected the major prize for the inaugural Masters Series with a solid finishing round to hold off John Hardy by 2 points with Trevor Porter and John Vallins a further 2 points away in equal 3rd place while Terry Ardouin took out the 5th place prize 6 points further back.

The day started poorly when the Pro informed me that there had been a $4 price rise for comp fees and I had no choice but to fork out an extra $80. I was annoyed they hadn't told me and most clubs hold the quoted price but the Pro was adamant we had to pay the increase.

As it turned out the Survival Ball did not survive the day so we saved $120 on that event, so instead of charging everyone an extra $4 I decided to use the survival ball prizemoney and drop the $40 balance into 'Sundry Income' on the finance page, so we now have $54.68 in the tin to help cover similar unforeseen expenses and rounding etc in the future.
