

MACQUARIE LINKS – 4th December, 2022

Competition was keen as the inaugural Masters Series nears completion with some very close results as players pulled out all stops on what turned out to be the 'moving day'.

The best weather we could expect greeted us and gave us no excuses for those of us who turned in ordinary scores, although the course is not in the best condition we've seen. The greens were true enough but much slower than the putting green indicated whilst I thought the tees could use a little more TLC and have been a bit neglected and the fairways are good although surprisingly dry.

So, the 4th round of the Masters Series saw Keith McLaren leap to the top of the slippery pole with a brilliant 40 points and he will take a 4 point lead into the final round at Glenmore in a month's time. Keith also reaped most of the rewards from a very successful day. Hot on his heels and hanging on to the pole by their finger nails, is John Hardy, John Vallins and Trevor Porter with 104 points, whilst Terry Ardouin stands in 5th place with 98 points.

But it's not over yet and a hot final round by a someone could still see Keith lose his grip but he is favourite as the contenders round the final bend.

For the day's events, Keith's best round of the day set up an easy win for group 4 as the three best scores of the day were all in that same group although they were all in different team colours. That resulted in the first-ever draw in the team's comp when the Blues and the Greens tied on 153 points just one point ahead of the Reds on 152.

Group 4 also returned the only Survival Ball and Pat Bardsley (in that same Group) won the Secret 6 prize to complete a clean sweep of the day's events as well as a healthy $80 of the skins on offer.
